

Evening Telegraph

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1864.

SPIRIT OF THE NEW YORK PRESS.

Leading Editorials from the New York Papers This Morning.

MYSTERIOUS GEORGIA CAMPAIGN.

From the Press.

The episode which is now presented to the imaginations of the Northern people, of General Sherman's legions purging out the darkness of an enemy's territory, during their shelter at Atlanta, is curious to behold, never to be seen again.

And still all the country reports to us victory.

It is a victory, certainly something dramatic and exciting.

To march to the sea, to cut off supplies to the rebels, to capture, to subdue, never to be seen again.

The Southern Voice—Tells us that the rebels' vote, to be far inferior, to lead up—

Lincoln..... 100,000

McClintock..... 100,000

Majority for Lincoln..... 17,000

The rebel triumphs, packages of votes sent over, and the rebels were received. Acting

General Lee, who had been captured by the Confederates, gave Lee a sword.

Captain Hough's battle is prominent, it reflects glory and death of poet.

The remnant of the army, the men—

Miss Lee's speech will appear upon the stage for the first time since her severe sickness.

Miss Lee's speech will appear upon the stage for the first time since her severe sickness.

Without the festival of spring, if, according to the historian, it is not considered, we have seen a daring enterprise such as we have seen undertaken earlier in the war, especially for the reason that it requires a certain's experience of battles, and a certain's iron morale to achieve such a result.

The French soldiers in the Peninsula

sometimes carried fifteen days provisions in their knapsacks and knapsacks, but they did not have such a light of marching as we have.

It should not be forgotten that a march

General Sherman's way through Georgia is such really to model would be a terrible thing.

Unexpected delays through our western fronts, and by the time his plans and the march, may have given him the opportunity to block up his way, to burn bridges, to cross over the roads, and especially—what may be to sweep the country of George and his army.

The march of the army would be considering the small states of nation and foreign, and might be reduced to shore campaigns or even ultimately forced to fall back.

This is the worst possibility; but on the other side, General Sherman has in his favor several notable field advantages, and in the most probability that the resources of the barns of the farms of Southern Georgia are full of supplies.

It is the richest region of the Confederacy, and the one which has suffered most from the war, and which have been planted on the old cotton lands.

There are no heavy garnisons, or any regular troops, who can delay him a day, and above all, who can easily rally on a great service to the camp, or even to the army, to the camp work, or even to the army, to the army.

It must suffice to say, that almost in the line of fire (as he is leading far away)

he will be successful, and if he

the poor Union cause, but there have any health and strength left, he will be able not only to free

them from the Richmond power.

Suffice it to say, that he will be able not only to free

them from the Richmond power.

Still more, the march through Georgia is a march towards base, not from it, and when he reaches the sea, he is sure of ammunition and supplies.

If he did in fact (as is rumored) leave

Atlanta next morning, he will be in the face of such a thorough military letter as Sherman's being the chief cause of the South's defeat, which in their case will be irretrievable.

ACQUIESCE IN THE POPULAR VICTORY.

From the Tribune.

Nearly forty-four years have passed since

Thomas Jefferson, in his first inaugural, proounced "acquiesce in the decision of a military principle of republicans, from which they have been separated."

Now could we strike a bold blow for the Union.

AMUSEMENTS.

WALNEY STREET THEATRE.—This evening Miss Lucille Weston will appear in the male character of "Don Cesare de Bazan." The performance will close with the thrilling Scotch martial drama, "Wallace, the Hero of Scotland," the next Miss Weston will appear as "Lady Isabella" in the play of "East Lynne; or, the Hypocrite."

PATERNOSTER ROW, ENGLAND.—On Saturday evening next Paternoster, or, Tales of the Snow—the old Wise Woman of Birkenhead, the well-known dramatic and comic, will be produced at the New Cross Theatre, theatre.

The daughter of Mr. Bonham, the author, will be played for the first time in this country.

This production was a success in England, and last night, Paternoster, or, Tales of the Snow—was given at the New Cross Theatre.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.

The author's wife, Mrs. Weston, will be present, and the play will be given in New York to receive eight or ten years in its original form.